The similarity match overview

The similarity match overview can be found in the side panel of the document viewer; it provides a breakdown of all the source matches that have been found within a paper, ordered by highest similarity match to lowest.

The similarity match overview provides source matches for student papers, publications, internet web pages, and private repository uploads.

Selecting a source

By selecting a source in the match overview side panel, this will highlight the match within the document itself. You can use the number and color identifiers to easily link the highlighted text in the document to the source in the match overview side panel.

The Goliath of the Sea

Blue Whale - Balaenoptera musculus

The majestic blue whale, the goliath of the sea, certainly stands alone within the animal kingdom for its adaptations beyond its massive size. At 30 metres (98 ft) in length and 190 tonnes (210 short tons) or more in weight, it is the largest existing animal and the heaviest that has ever existed. Goliath is not only the physical embodiment of a giant, but also a symbol of the brute forces of nature. Despite their incomparable mass, aggressive hunting in the 1900s by whalers seeking

Navigating through matches

Selecting a source will display each of its associated matches within the match overview side panel; you can freely navigate through them using the forward and back arrows. However, if there is only one match linked to a source, the arrows will be disabled.

You can only view match details for submissions that have been made to your own private repository. Administrators can change how much of the original text you can view.
